In another column will be found the endorsement given Mr. Durst by the Green County Democratic Central Committee. Much has been said about the misuse of proxies at this committee meeting by the congressman's brother, O. T. Hamlin. The truth of the matter is, O. T. Hamlin scoured Green county for proxies to be used in the interest of his brother, warning committeemen of the use to which they were to be put. And the only reason they were given to Mr. Durst's supporters was that the committee believed that the nomination of Mr. C. W. Hamlin would not be for the best interest of the Democratic party. The cry of "misuse of proxies" is a political trick as old as the hills, and to the average voter it has a ring not unlike the Dave Ball cry of "fraud."

Greene Is For Durst.

The statement being made, that the action of the Greene county Democratic central committee in endorsing Harry D. Durst for the Democratic nomination for representative in congress in his district is irregular, is without foundation. The committee in the past endorsed Congressman Hamlin and did so in 1904.

At 2 o'clock p. m., on March 6, 1914, the county committee met at the office of George A. McCollum, chairman. V. N. Bray was secretary and was present. A resolution was passed immediately when the committee was called to order, endorsing Congressman Hamlin for renomination and declaring to the counties in the north end of the district that Greene county would send a solid Hamlin delegation to the congressional convention to be held in Sedalia March 30.

S. A. Haseltine was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress, and he continued in his efforts to secure the nomination until the county convention met to send delegates to Sedalia as a Hamlin delegate. Instructed for Hamlin, Mr. Haseltine obtained a proxy and went to Sedalia as a Hamlin delegate.

If Congressman Hamlin were the choice of the Greene county Democracy now he would insist on endorsement by the committee as he did in the past. The fact is, Harry D. Durst is the Greene county candidate and the committee did nothing more than voice the sentiment of a large majority of the voters of the county when it endorsed him.—Springfield Leader.

The annual Corder picnic which is held on July 29, promises to equal or surpass former attempts this season in spite of the "psychological" depression in business. This is the thirteenth season Corder has held this yearly home coming event.

There is promise of a good program this year. The Concordia band will furnish the music for the day and night. The usual band concert will be held in town in the morning followed by a number of contests. The Corder base ball team will play Waverly in a match game in the afternoon. Other attractions including candidate speaking will entertain those who do not care for the ball game. In town at night the streets will be wired and lighted by electricity and a free outdoor motion picture show will be in progress throughout the evening. A first class dramatic show company will give a performance at the opera house, so on the whole there is promise of plenty of amusement even at this early date two weeks in advance.

Mrs. Emma F. Reeder returned to her home in Asher, Okla., Friday after an extended visit here with relatives.

WITHOUT POWER TO RESENT

Man Might Fume at His Rival but Under the Circumstances He Could Do Nothing.

He walked up and down the room, gesticulating excitedly and saying uncomplimentary things about his rival.

"It is terrible!" he said.

"What is terrible?" they asked.

"Talk about the problem of the Man in the Iron Mask," he exclaimed, ignoring the question. "Why, this is a thousand times worse than that!"

"What is it?" they asked.

"My rival has been carrying false stories about me to the girl I love!" he cried.

"And what did you do?" they asked.

"Nothing," he answered. "I was powerless."

They laughed scornfully and made jests at his expense.

"What would you advise me to do?" he inquired.

"Kill him!" they replied.

He shook his head.

"At least they insisted," you could thrash him within an inch of his life; you could resent an insult by pounding him until he would figure principally as a nonentity for the next six or eight weeks."

"You forget," he said.

"Forget what?" they demanded.

"He carries both accident and life insurance policies in the company that I represent."

MUCH MIXUP IN THIS STORY

One May Believe or Disbelieve Yarn Concerning Cat and Hen of St. Louis County.

This is a stray story that comes from Luxemburg, St. Louis county, and which deals with a pussy cat and a biddy hen, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. If you have any doubt about its truth ask Louis Walther, who lives on the Lamay Ferry road, just south of the southern St. Louis limits.

Louis declares that he has a cat which hatched out six Plymouth Rock chicks and refused to deliver them on the mother hen after the birds were born. Jealous, Louis claims, of the cat's affections for what should have been her own brood, biddy hen kidnapped three kittens which had been neglected in the interest of the chicks.

Here is the way Louis says it happened: He had a hen hatching eggs in a sheltered corner of the fence. Then the hen became neglectful of her duty or the cat scared her away, which, he will not undertake to say. Anyhow, the cat and her kittens took possession of the hen's nest and were there when the shells were cracked.

When the chickens came the kittens were neglected to such an extent they wandered away and were finally adopted by the childless hen.

HONORS WERE EASY.

Colonel Roosevelt, while president, wished to appoint an ex-Rough Rider marshal of a Rocky mountain state, but first questioned him as to his past.

"Now, Ben," asked Mr. Roosevelt, "how did you lose that half of your ear?"

To which, looking rather shy, Ben responded:

"Well, colonel, it was bit off."

"How did it happen, Ben?"

"Well, you see, I was sent to arrest a gentleman, and him and me mixed it up and he bit off my ear."

"What did you do to the gentleman, Ben?"

And Ben, looking more coy than ever, responded: "Well, colonel, we broke about even."

AVOID BROODING.

We must not brood; work necessitates enough light at least to work by; and as one works, the light grows. A saving interest comes in what one is doing. When we are tempted into discouragement we must keep busy. Depression passes; moods of discouragement do not last; nature is against them. And then the cause of the discouragement retreats farther and farther as time goes on. You may lose heart just when a little courage would save the day.

UNKNOWN QUANTITY.

Mother—I just knew that studying algebra would ruin Lizzie.

Father—What's wrong now?

Mother—She writes from college that she's engaged to a Russian named Yerkyofayzyquyviz.
